

Outsiders

Outsiders is a self-help group for people of all ages with physical and social disabilities. They offer members the chance to contact others, gain more confidence, make new friends and perhaps find a partner. They welcome people of all sexualities, whether they are single, divorced, separated or married, and discriminate against no one. Members are given a list of others that they can make contact with, receive regular newsletters and the opportunity to attend social events.

They also have a Sex and Disability Helpline.
