Brandling Park

Brandling Park, a small Victorian park, can be found adjacent to the Great North Road. The park has a quiet village green atmosphere and is made up of informal lawned areas, lined by trees and a pleasant mix of flowers and shrubs.

Its relaxed nature makes it a popular meeting place for local residents and students and is popular for walking and informal recreation. The good network of footpaths and cycle paths makes it popular for those working in the city centre.

Brandling Park is connected to nearby Exhibition Park by an underpass, where you will find facilities including a café and toilets.

This park is managed by Newcastle City Council Parks and Allotments Service.
