

Northern Cancer Voices

Northern Cancer Voices is a group of volunteers, patients, carers, along with health professionals, who have an interest in ensuring the best possible quality of care and support for cancer patients and their family and friends.

They listen to the experiences of patients, carers, families and friends and use the information to improve the quality of services. Working with health professionals and networks, such as the Northern Cancer Alliance and charities such as Macmillan, they hope to improve the experience of cancer treatment for everyone.
