

Voice for Change forum - Disability North

Voice For Change Forum is a space led by disabled people and those with lived experience to talk inclusion, access, and action.

Disability North is launching something new – a community-led forum where people with lived experience can come together, share what matters most, and start conversations that lead to real change.

They're inviting disabled people, people with lived experience, parents, carers, and inclusion advocates to join us for an introductory session to shape what this forum should look like.

This will be a safe, welcoming space to:

- Talk about the issues you face every day
- Share your ideas, solutions, and priorities
- Connect with others who care about inclusion and access
- Help influence decisions that affect our lives

As the forum develops, they'll be inviting organisations to join the conversation and hear directly from the people impacted by their decisions.
